

Spalding Parish Church of England Day School Approach to Writing

At SPCEDS we want children to:

- ─ See themselves as a writer and celebrate their success;
- ─ Be able to reflect, edit and publish their own work;
- ─ Be able to select appropriate word choice, sentence structure and text form for effect;
- ─ Understand the relevance of writing to themselves and their lives;
- ─ Understand the purpose, audience and forms of writing;
- ─ Develop resilience as independent writers.

Teachers should refer to the National Curriculum 2014 for year group expectations when reading this document.

Writing for a Purpose – Michael Tidd

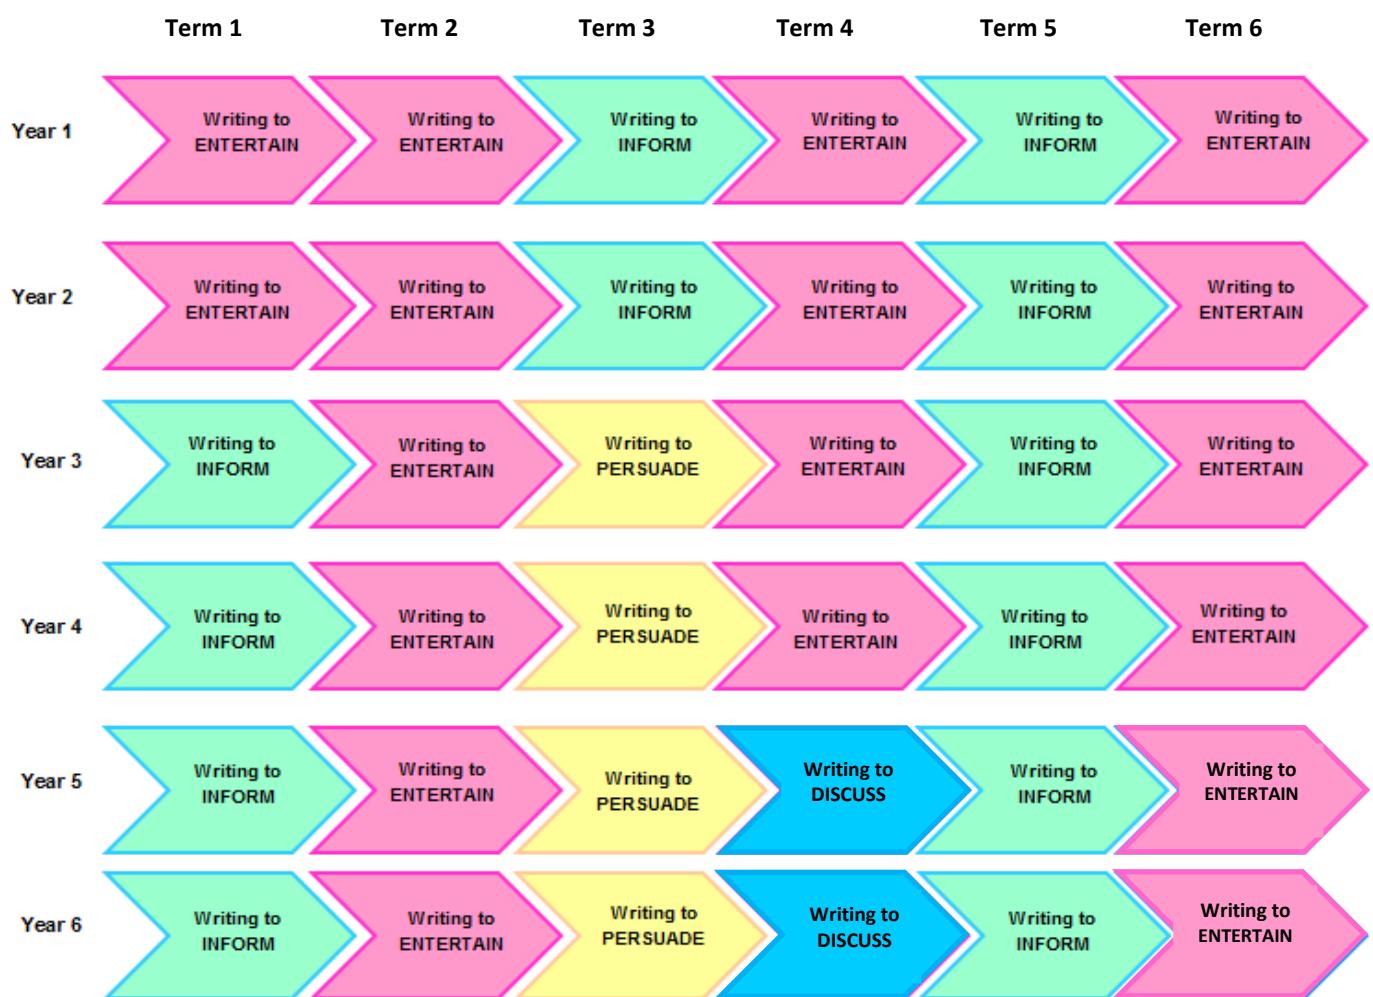

The ‘Purpose for Writing’ Approach

At SPCEDS we are adopting a ‘Purpose for Writing’ approach. Rather than trying to teach children ten or more different genres or text types (which can actually be used for a variety of purposes), our approach focusses on what those different types have in common: the purpose for writing.

The four purposes to write being taught across KS1 and KS2 are:

- To entertain;
- To inform;
- To persuade;
- To discuss.

Below is a provisional long term plan for writing in our school:

EYFS Focus: To entertain and to inform

KS1 Focus: To entertain and to inform

LKS2 Focus: To inform, entertain and persuade

UKS2 Focus: To inform, entertain, persuade and discuss

Should the Long Term Plan be followed in order?

Although coverage of the four purposes of writing is prescriptive, the order in which teachers complete them is up to teacher discretion, their knowledge of the curriculum approach and progress of children in their particular year group. In the staff room the LTP will be displayed for all staff to see with moveable chevrons for each year group. As long as teachers are showing the order in which they teach the purposes on this board, the order is up to them. This must be updated termly. Teachers are encouraged to spend longer on each unit to ensure that concepts are really grasped.

What text types should be taught with each purpose?

Below is an overview of the different texts types that can be taught with each purpose. It is set out in Phases to show progression throughout the school. It is expected that two main outcomes are chosen for each terms purpose e.g. Year 2 in Term 1 may focus on ‘Writing to Entertain’ and write a story and piece of poetry. This means that at the end of one short term, pupils will have completed at least two pieces of writing. Planning will be required (although not formally written) to be placed behind the appropriate chevron on the staff room planning board in a planning pocket.

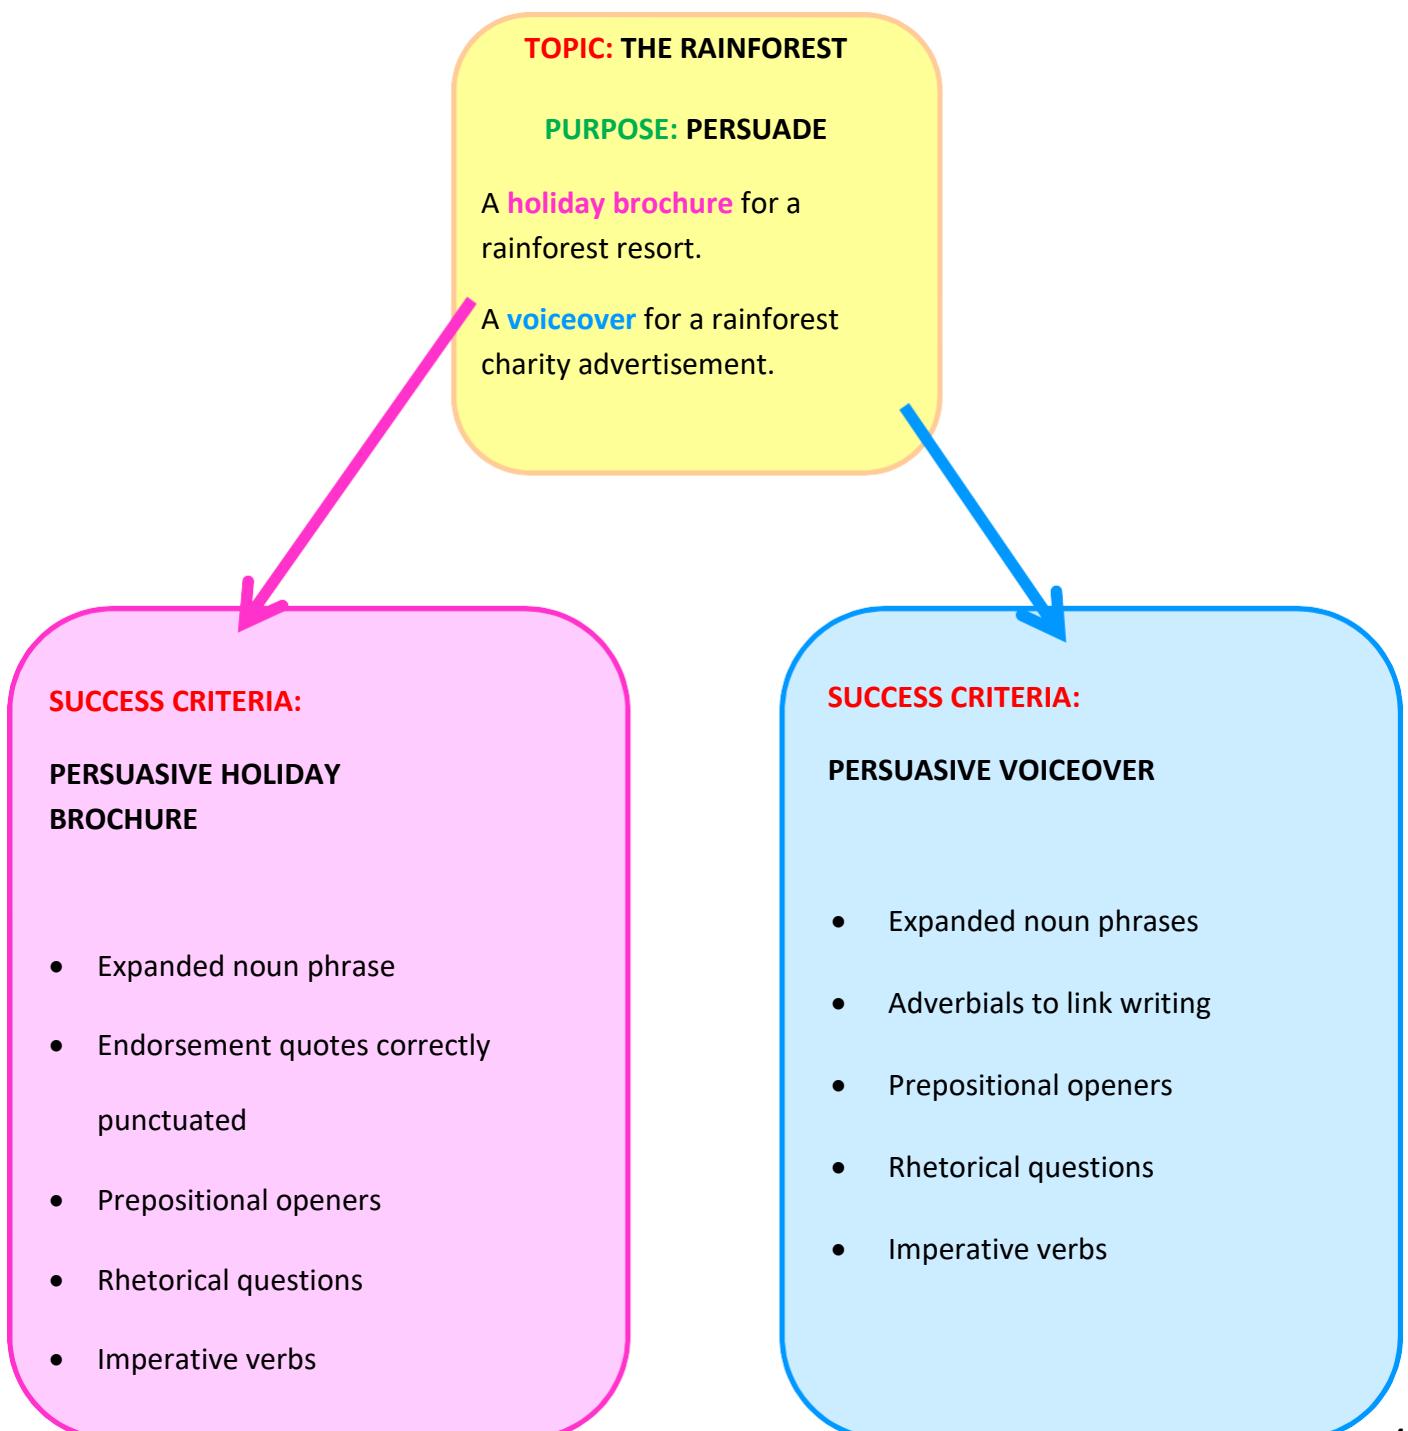

There will also be a requirement for pupils to publish their finished pieces; this will be discussed later in this document.

Why this approach?

This approach to writing better prepares pupils to recognise different genres and which purpose they are linked to: they're not a distinct type in themselves to be taught in a vacuum. So instead of seeing newspapers as newspapers and biographies as biographies, children will begin to recognise both these text types as texts to inform. With this in place, pupils are more likely to notice specific text features and structures, grammar and sentence structures, word level and choice and punctuation that cross between the two different text types being taught. Therefore, children do not have to scrap everything they learnt and start a completely new purpose: they are able to use their recently taught knowledge to help build on different text types and therefore retain the different aspects of the purpose for writing. This can be valuably seen in success criteria for different text types.

Success Criteria:

When creating writing success criteria, give pupils opportunities to embed their skills by using the grammar and punctuation in a different context. As you can see above, the success criteria for two different persuasive outcomes are very similar. This means that children are able to secure their skills and experience success as previously set targets are still applicable in the next text. With this approach, pupils will begin to develop a deeper understanding of a particular purpose for writing. Less jumping around between different genres and taking time to secure key objectives will help improve outcomes in pupils' work as well as help them retain knowledge and their new learning.

Useful Resources and Reading:

Michael Tidd has created guidance notes that offer some indications of National Curriculum content that might be covered in each section (purpose) including:

- 💡 Elements of whole-text ideas;
- 💡 Suggestions for sentences and grammar;
- 💡 Notes on punctuation to include;
- 💡 Some examples of conjunctions and adverbials.

This is a key document that should be used when planning units of writing.

Copies of this document will be available in the staff room for all staff to see the progression of the different purposes throughout the school.

Punctuation Content

- Use full punctuation for direct speech, including punctuation within and before inverted commas.
Mum asked, "Will you be home for tea?"
- Secure use of apostrophes for possession, including for plural nouns.
- Use commas after fronted adverbials and subordinate clauses
- May begin to use dashes for emphasis

Planning a Genre Unit:

At SPCEDS, Long Term Plans are in place which effectively plan how all aspects of Writing and Reading can help and support each area of both core subjects: planning carefully so that learning links and helps pupils to consolidate and deepen their knowledge and understanding. Long Term Plans include the objectives to be covered over the course of any academic year and include the purpose of the writing to be covered.

Alongside the Long Term Plans a unit plan will be completed for each genre taught and studied, clearly focused on the purpose of the Writing. This overview should show the coverage of writing objectives for the unit as well as linking reading texts to help support specific areas of writing. Year Groups should meet to map out the objectives utilising the focus areas of Collect it, Deconstruct it, Plan it, Construct it, Write it and Edit it, whilst ensuring NC coverage within the planned tasks.

The main purpose of this way of planning will be to ensure learning is linked up and layered to develop fluency with key skills.

How to teach and present writing at SPCEDS (the learning process):

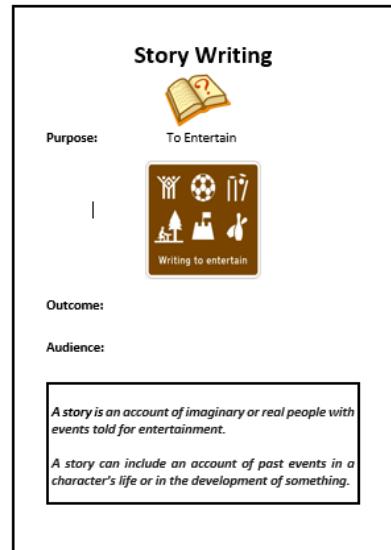

Front Cover:

At the beginning of each new piece of writing, a front cover should be added. It should be bright, eye-catching and clearly show the stimulus for the following writing.

The front cover must include:

- The genre of writing;
- The purpose of the writing;
- The audience;
- A definition of the genre.

This is to ensure that children understand the audience and the purpose of the writing and should be referred to throughout the unit. A collection of these will be available on the staff drive.

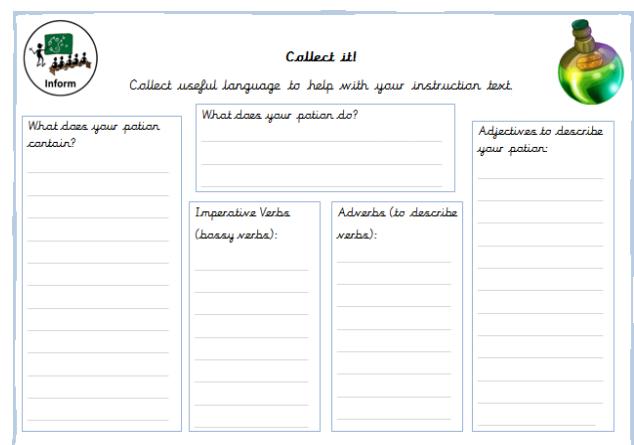

Collect It:

The purpose of the Collect It stage is for children to be equipped with the best possible language to apply in their writing. We want to engage the children in writing through the provision of a range of engaging writing stimuli.

To ensure quality language collection:

- ⚠ Provide rich experiences to develop ideas and vocabulary to use in writing. This could be in the form of a trip, a visitor, a film or a creative experience.
- ⚠ All children should have access to high quality visuals/objects as well as dictionaries and thesauruses.

Use photo images instead of line drawings or clipart. Ensure that the meaning of visuals provided for EAL learners is obvious. This may mean that an image in the context of the genre is accompanied by an image from everyday life in order to convey meaning.

If children have ‘something to say’ for a particular purpose, they are more likely to construct sentences that make sense. Children should organise their words and information according to purpose and function rather than grammatical categories. This does not mean that we lose the emphasis on grammar. The correct terminology should still be reinforced and referred to at every opportunity. We are placing the emphasis on the function as a means of arriving at the rules.

Any Collect It in books should:

- ─ Be neat and well presented;
- ─ Show differentiated outcomes linked to grammar;
- ─ Be marked and spellings identified for correction – all spellings must be correct before moving on. Non-negotiable spellings may be marked as sp for the pupil to correct, however if the incorrect spelling is a new word or topic word, staff members should help the pupil to correct the spelling.

Collect it!

Collect useful language to help with your setting description.

 Entertain	Language to describe the place (e.g. adjectives).
	Language to describe the things in the place being visited (adjectives, adverbs, similes).
	Language to describe the narrator's emotions e.g. -ly openers.
	Language to show the order in which things happen e.g. subordinating conjunctions.

Top Tips:

- ─ Capture photographic evidence of this part of the process for pupil books. Pupils will look back and remember experiences which will help with their writing;
- ─ Use language lines to begin to develop pupils' language from everyday use to the specialised language of the topic.

Our Language Line

Lots of colourful fish swam	Shoals of rainbow fish darted gracefully
Jumping into the cool water	Diving under the glassy surface into the hidden world below everyday informal spontaneous

more like we write

Deconstruct it:

Before the pupils begin to plan their writing, they should have opportunities to explore age related texts to better understand layout and features etc.

Use of exemplar texts (WAGOLLS) are crucial to the teaching of writing. The level of language should be pitched so it is slightly ahead of what the highest achievers can currently write and is, therefore, challenging but within reach. The receptive language of EAL children (as well as many with SEND) is often far ahead of their written skills. Therefore, we should not put ceilings on language acquisition by simplifying WAGOLLS. Instead, we should use scaffolding as a means of access to the rich language of the WAGOLL.

Plan It:

Once the pupils have been immersed with the language and knowledge of the topic and structures of the text type, they will then plan their own piece of writing. By the end of the 'Plan it' stage, children should have organised their ideas gained from the writing process so far into a cohesive and structured plan ready for writing. This does not have to be a boxed-up plan but must show that the pupil understands the structure, flow and language of their planned piece of writing. The reason pupils plan is to use their plan for writing.

Construct It:

This section of the learning process is to focus on the teaching of new knowledge needed to write their final piece. This will include precision teaching, modelling, relating to the purpose and function of the text as well as focused grammar activities. For example: Year 4 pupils are writing a narrative where they need to use fronted adverbials. In this stage fronted adverbials would be taught. Grammar linked to the genre or purpose should be in the English book so the progression of learning is clear. Any other GPS work is to be undertaken in Grammar books (Phonic books in KS1). The children then may produce some writing or ideas using this skill that they could use in their final piece. Or they may write a different text type to practise the newly taught skill. At this stage, the pupils should be writing their final piece.

Write It:

At this stage the pupils should be ready to write. They will have their plan, WAGOLL, language ideas as well as newly taught skills to help them write. This isn't a free write. This can still be structured with revision all the way through. This process may take up to three days depending on the year group and cohort.

Tigers

One of the cat family's most remarkable creatures is the tiger. Usually, they are found in countries such as Thailand, India and Indonesia. As you can see, they are quite large and need to look in specific habitats, including savannahs, grasslands and forests. These animals have also been found in them rainforests. Despite being one of the most dangerous predators in the jungle, they continue to fascinate people around the world and many nature programmes are dedicated to these powerful creatures. Read on if you want to find out more!

What do tigers look like?

As tigers are the largest members of the cat family, they are known to have black stripes on a golden-yellow coat. They have a white patch on their chest, which helps them to camouflage in the snow. They have long whiskers, which are used for sensing vibrations in the air. They have sharp claws, which are used for killing their prey. Interestingly, they can grow up to 10% longer, when compared to the biggest animals in the jungle. Generally, tigers weigh around 150kg yet their weight can increase up to 300kg if they belong to Siberian tiger family.

How do tigers behave?

Tigers are one of the deadliest hunters in the jungle. As tigers are carnivores, they mostly eat other mammals such as deer, wild boar, water buffalo or antelope. In addition to this, they are also known to hunt sloths, monkeys, crocodiles and pangolins, as well as monkeys and horses. It is essential that they eat smaller animals like these because they need to maintain their energy. Surprisingly, old and injured tigers have been known to attack humans and domestic cattle (cows) as these are more vulnerable and easier to attack.

If you ever find a tiger in your area, don't panic! If you see any sudden movement, however, it is unlikely that you will be the next hunting game for tigers. Tiger populations are decreasing, with population estimates as low as 3,200. Let's help them to survive! Implement rules and practices in the future to prevent them from dying out and disappearing completely.

Edit It:

Once the pupils have written their first draft, editing should firstly be taught and practiced, focusing on the Year Group AREs, before them editing their own work. This could be self-editing or peer editing. Writing should be edited with a clear focus on Year Group AREs (the objectives taught and met so far).

Celebrate It:

When the unit has come to an end, pupils may be asked to write their piece up in best. All final pieces will be displayed so this must be best quality. This work will also be used for monitoring purposes as well as moderating and will show a child's progress over the academic year. This may also be a final draft that shows editing.

Cold and Hot Writes:

Cold and Hot writes will not be a requirement when completing a unit of writing.

Teaching Strategies

Modelled Writing

Modelled writing is a specific strategy which allows teachers to explicitly demonstrate the process of writing by ‘thinking aloud’. The children listen and observe.

Shared Writing

Shared writing is a specific strategy which allows children to participate in the writing process by contributing ideas and knowledge without the pressure of having to write on their own. This can be either done as whole class or small group with an adult scribing.

Paired Writing

When composing and redrafting, paired writing is a specific strategy, which is embedded in the writing process, allowing children to ‘talk the text’ and consider the impact on the reader and where necessary redraft and edit their work.

Independent Writing

Independent writing is a specific strategy, which allows children to write independently and experiment with mark making. As they do this they try out the skills and knowledge that they have acquired through modelled and shared experiences.

Guided Writing

Guided writing lessons are targeted, small-group sessions teaching those strategies to a group of students most need to practice, with immediate guidance from the teacher.

Grammar

Grammar is taught so that children understand the effect the choices they make have on meaning and is taught in the context of purposeful talk, reading and writing.

It is expected that grammar will be taught explicitly, in context with further opportunities planned in order that children can apply and practice their learning across the curriculum so that they deepen their conceptual understanding.

Grammar can be taught as a whole lesson or a series of starters depending on the teaching sequence.

Grammar lessons should be active and instructive with varied opportunities for children to apply and demonstrate their learning during guided and independent writing.

Cross-curricular Writing

Children are given opportunities to practise and apply their writing skills across the curriculum. This may be a specific skill e.g. use of headings or bullet point or it may be through an extended task.

Vocabulary enrichment:

We recognise that children at SPCEDS often come to us with underdeveloped vocabulary. Providing an enriched vocabulary environment will be a focus for every teacher so that by the end of the year ambitious vocabulary is being used by pupils at an appropriate level. This must be achieved through:

- ☞ Word of the day;
- ☞ Teachers modelling word choices;
- ☞ Linear and shades of meaning word lists eg. sad/unhappy, gloomy, miserable, dejected, desolate, devastated;
- ☞ Exploring synonyms and antonyms;
- ☞ Word chains passed around a group;
- ☞ Word mats/banks including topical and technical vocabulary;
- ☞ Regular use of thesauri at appropriate stages.

Vocabulary should be high profile on learning walls and other displays and should form a key part of discussions and learning. Definitions of words, origins, examples of use in context and possible alternatives should also be evident.

Classroom Environment:

1. In every classroom a learning wall is displayed. This learning wall should show the purpose for writing, each step of the writing procedure (whether this is class work with the teacher or a good example of work by a pupil) as well as an ARE example of the text type for pupils to refer back to and aim for the same quality.

It is vital that learning walls show not only writing work from specific writing lessons but also spelling, punctuation, grammar, word level and reading work that has helped build the pupils' understanding of the text.

2. As stated previously vocabulary should be a key part of learning walls with some interactivity for pupils to explore new vocabulary.

3. The school's handwriting script must be displayed in all classrooms and any writing that is added to display must be neat, joined and legible to help raise standards across the school.

4. Dictionaries/thesauruses should be freely available to pupils to use independently when needed.

Publishing:

Teachers are the most important role model for presentation and high expectations. All final published writing on display should have joined, legible, consistently formed and neat letters appropriate to their year group. If first or second drafts are displayed this is made clear using a sign to indicate this.

ICT:

Pupils are encouraged to write on paper and on screen and are specifically taught to develop the necessary skills to allow them to do this effectively. As they move through KS2, they are taught the advantages of editing on screen. We recognise that writing is a key skill which is necessary for much of the pupil's learning in ICT itself.
